

Making Sense of Sensory

MARCH 2, 2019 | CHRIST LUTHERAN EARLY EDUCATION CENTER
11720 NIEMAN RD., OVERLAND PARK, KS 66210

The way we process and respond to sensory input is what makes each of us unique. And the way young children take in and respond to sensory information can significantly impact their development and behavior.

Sensory processing and sensory processing disorders can be complicated issues, so how are educators supposed to make sense of it all?

Featured Presenter, Cari Ebert, pediatric speech-language pathologist, will lead an all-day workshop that will help preschool and early education teachers navigate this important topic.

Cari returns by popular demand as she spoke on the importance of play at both KAIRS 2018 Early Childhood Education Workshops in Topeka and Salina. Her high-energy, evidence-based approach received consistently high ratings from attendees. You will take helpful insights back to the classroom on the complex topic of sensory processing. Register today!

Cari Ebert, MS, CCC-SLP, is a popular nationally recognized speaker and is dedicated to helping young children achieve their maximum potential with speech, language and social-emotional development.

She works exclusively with young children from birth to age five, and believes that early intervention is the key to future success.

Cari received her bachelor's degree from the University of Iowa in 1993 and her master's degree from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale in 1995. Cari is a speech therapist in private practice in Kansas City, MO.
